Perrett Webb

Perrett Webb is an exciting new partnership that brings together Australia's most successful golfer and Australia's most experienced golf course architect. Perrett Webb is one of the world's premier golf course design companies, having completed more than 250 successful projects worldwide. The firm had a new beginning with the arrival in 2018 of Karrie Webb as a Director. Honouring its past but with its eye firmly on the future. Perrett Webb has deep respect for both the origins and traditions of the game, and for the land and culture within which its courses are built.

Ross Perrett

Ross Perrett has been managing director and head designer at the firm since 1991. He is a planner, architect, landscape architect and golf course designer who has worked on over 200 projects, including designing more than 80 new courses worldwide. Over the past 35 years Ross has worked in some of the toughest golfing landscapes, including China, India, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, Egypt, the United Kingdom, New Zealand, Australia, Japan and Hong Kong. Ross's reputation is peerless in both high quality private, resort and integrated residential and golf developments, designing courses in environments as diverse as rice paddies and deserts, world heritage-listed marine parks, even on the slopes of a volcano. Ross prides himself on solving problems and delivering on promises in an efficient, timely and cost-effective manner.

Karrie Webb AO

Karrie Webb is Australia's greatest ever golfer, with 41 LPGA victories and 53 victories in total – including seven major championships – over a 25-year career throughout the USA, Europe, Asia, Australia and South Africa. Karrie is a member of the World Golf Hall of Fame, and one of only 25 inductees into the LPGA Hall of Fame. Importantly, Karrie brings both an elite player's and a woman's perspective into the Perrett Webb partnership. She has played more than 500 of the world's great courses, with both professionals and male and female amateurs alike. This has allowed her to study each course from different perspectives. With her professional playing career slowing down, Karrie wants her next golfing challenge to revolve around her passion for golf course design. Karrie has been involved in several design projects, mostly in the Australian state of Queensland.

Perrett Webb combines the wisdom of one of Australia's most experienced course architects with the deep knowledge of Australia's greatest living golfer.

Perrett Webb has respect for both the origins and traditions of the game, and for the land and culture within which courses are built.

Perrett Webb are committed to delivering world-class projects on time and on budget.

Background

Perrett Webb has its origins in the course design firm Thomson Wolveridge Perrett, which began as a partnership between five-time British Open winner Peter Thomson AO, CBE, course architect and former professional golfer Michael Wolveridge, and course architect and landscape architect Ross Perrett. When Michael Wolveridge retired, the firm became Thomson Perrett.

The company was founded by, Peter Thomson in 1965. Winner of more than 100 professional tournaments worldwide, Peter's talent for golf and his love of the game was legendary, and saw him design courses worldwide for more than 50 years. Peter was instrumental in the growth of the game in Asia. His continued commitment to the game through his design work with the company was pivotal in delivering pleasure and satisfaction to generations of golfers around the world.

Before Peter Thomson died in 2018, he made clear his wish that Karrie Webb should join the firm. Australia's greatest golfer, Karrie assisted the company with its design proposal for the Olympic Games in Rio de Janeiro in 2016, as well as plans for a course at Uluru in Central Australia and other projects.

A new company was born, with an extraordinary heritage.

Our Services

An important factor in Perrett Webb's success has been the employment of experienced in-house professionals for all aspects of course design and planning. Our team enables Perrett Webb to deliver seamless and trouble-free experiences for golf clubs and developers, to ensure that projects remain on schedule and on budget.

The courses we design and develop are golfer-friendly and sustainable, both economically and environmentally, promoting both success for developers and enjoyment for golfers.

The guiding principle at Perrett Webb is respect – for both the origins and traditions surrounding the great game of golf, and also for the culture, the land we work with and the context within we build courses.

The last 30 years have witnessed big changes in the world of golf. The focus of the game has moved from Europe and the United States to the Asia-Pacific. Perrett Webb has been designing, building and delivering in the region for 35 years and our knowledge of the Asia-Pacific runs deep.

Our services include masterplanning, golf course design, golf related architecture and landscape design. Many of Australia and Asia's leading golf clubs entrust Perrett Webb with monitor the ongoing development of their courses.

Remodelling

The demands of the modern game and the cost of maintaining golf courses to high standards of excellence make it essential for established golf clubs to employ experienced consultants.

Golf courses are naturally dynamic and ever-changing, so it is important for all work to be part of a master plan. Remodelling can involve the redesign of greens, tees and bunkers. Fairways can be re-aligned and reshaped. The golf course landscape is a critical part of a golf course and often needs editing and enhancement.

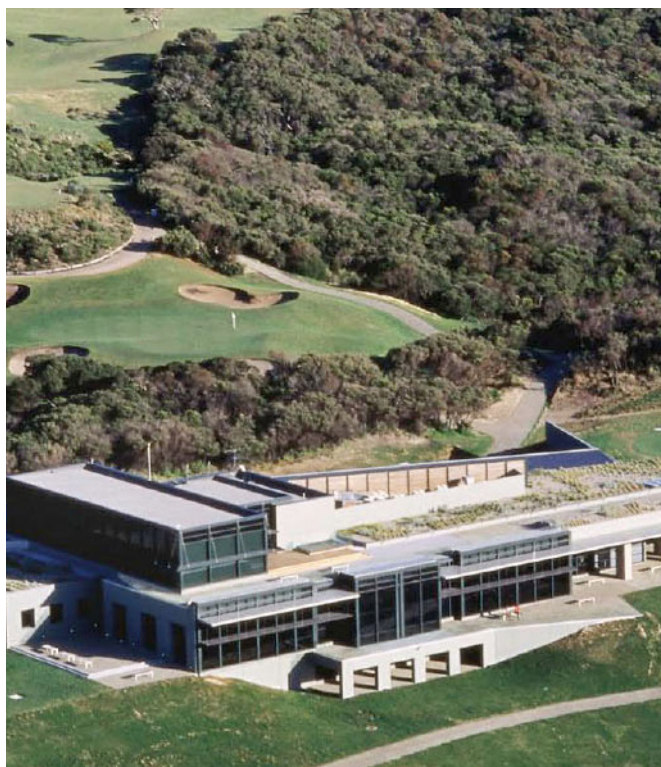

It is essential to get the best agronomic advice available to ensure the correct grass selection for the project. Likewise independent expertise is required for the design of the irrigation system and water sourcing and management.

Architecture

Perrett Webb bring a new, integrated approach to concept planning. An integral part of our design team, our in-house architects have long experience in the international golf arena with insight into the particular needs of the clubhouse, golf course structures and associated residential and resort buildings.

The Perrett Webb team assists in the preparation of design briefs and concept plans for clubhouse facilities, providing a continuing monitoring role to ensure all aspects of the development are carried out in accordance with the intent of the original design.

Designing a clubhouse requires a thorough understanding of golf and golfers, as well as an appreciation of the various roles a clubhouse performs as part of its successful operation.

Landscape

As part of our design team, Perrett Webb includes experienced landscape architects with particular expertise in golf course development to undertake landscape master planning, prepare drawings and supervise installation.

Our underlying philosophy is to work with and respect sites, whether part of a tropical rainforest, an ancient heathland, a wetland or an open woodland. We undertake comprehensive site analysis with the help of local horticulturists and botanists to select the palette of plant material to be used which is environmentally sound and compatible with golf.

Perrett Webb adhere to the philosophies of Golf Environment Organization (GEO). We understand that environmental concerns demand innovative landscape design solutions, including nutrient-stripping, habitat preservation and visual quality.

Optional services include - detailed clubhouse landscaping, detailed planting plans, construction documentation and contract administration. We can also design golf course furniture, including signage, tee markers and seats.
